What is ARPwave Neuromuscular Therapy ?

ARPwave Neuromuscular Therapy is a cutting-edge treatment that utilizes electrical stimulation in combination with aspects of Physical Therapy, Neurology, Chiropractic, and Personal Training to help address a myriad of physical and neurological conditions. What makes ARPwave different? Simply stated, we focus on the cause of a problem, not the symptoms. The proprietary waveform combined with specific treatment guidelines and movements help facilitate the body's natural healing process. This increases blood flow and improves muscle function, resulting in a reduction of pain and enhanced overall well-being.

ARPwave treats the source of pain, not just the symptoms.

Pinpoint the source of pain

Create new brain-to-muscle connections

Strengthen neuro-patterns with designated movements

What's the science behind ARPwave?

Reset compensation patterns

Restore proper function

Eliminate pain and enhance recovery

When your body experiences an injury, it often goes into a protective mode, shutting down neuromuscular pathways to prevent further damage. This leads to compensation patterns that affect movement and cause pain and discomfort.

ARPwave treatments are designed to help locate these pathways, break improper movement patterns and retrain proper movement and communication within your body. Because we address the dysfunction, results are complete and long-lasting result.

Integrating active rehabilitation into my practice years ago was a strategic decision aimed at improving clinical outcomes, boosting revenues, and garnering favor with insurance companies. However, with the introduction of ARPwave devices, our rehabilitation efforts have been supercharged beyond measure. The efficiency and effectiveness of this technology have transformed our practice, allowing us to achieve remarkable results. Notably, with just five Blue Cross Blue Shield patients per day, we've experienced a significant revenue increase, adding an impressive $10,000 in additional revenue per month. ARPwave has undeniably revolutionized our approach to rehabilitation, proving to be an invaluable asset to our practice.
